Congress has adjourned and the wo great parties are before the country on three well defined issues, and it is the duty of the people in casting their ballots to consider these issues well.

The first issue presented is the tariff. A greater piece of injustice to the farmers and other people who do not depend on manufacturing interests could never have been perpetrated than the McKinley tariff law. It was bad enough before: it is worse now. Under the pretext of fostering home enteprise and building up home markets the people at large are robbed to enrich a few people engaged in manufacturing. It has been well said that the first tariff act before the war was for the protection of American industries; that the war tariff was for the purpose of paying the expenses of carrying on the war; and that the present tariff, which is greater than the war tariff is for the purpose of enrich manufacturers so that they can provide the republicans with a campaign fund for the purpose of corrupting the people to their own hurt. There can be no doubt but that the present tariff is for campaign purposes, to pay back the con-tributions of 1888 made to elect Harrison and to provide funds for the future. One or two instances of oppression need only be given a tariff is levied on tin that greatly increases the cost of all tin vessels, not only the bucket in which the workman carries his dinner, but many domestic articles-all canned goods must pay a tribute to the tariff. Does the government get the tax that is imposed? Not by a great deal. The purpose of the tax is to raise the price of sheet iron utensils so that the iron men may pocket the difference in prices, and also to foster a job in Dakota where some tin has been discovered. Another instance is the raising of the tax on cotton bagging and ties. It was reduced on the Western farmers' binding twine, and as an instance of the consistency and good faith of the democratic party, the democratic senators united with the western republican senators in voting for free binding twine, when a half hour la-

What is known as the Force bill is the second issue. In order to perpetrate itself in power and to rob the people of their right to elect their own representatives to con-gress the republican party has passed in the lower House a bill wresting from the several States their right to control the election of their Congressmen and vesting it in supervisors and returning boards appointed and created by the republicans themselves, thus putting the entire election machinery for representa-Higgins the Iron Mountain railway tives in Congress under the control for personal injuries received while of the republicans. They hypocriemployed as brakeman by the rail- tically chagre that this is done to prevent frauds, of course democratic frauds as meant by them, but the result of the charge would be republican fraud in every congressional district that was either democratic or doubtful. By supervisors and while the advantages of Falls county deputy marshals at the polls, they are elegantly set forth. Taken altoseek to overawe and intimidate the gether it is one of the most creditable voters: but if the voter should have manhood enough to cast a democratic ballot in spite of all, then the convenient returning board will throw it out as fraudulently cast and count in the republican candidate. This bill is now pending be Election Precinct in Justice's Precinct No. fore the United States Senate, and will be called at the session which convenes December 1. EXAMINE YOUR TICKETS.

An old trick of Republicans and independents is that of duplicating Democrat tickets with the exception of one or two names which are substituted in the place of regular nominees with the hope of catching those who vote carelessly. Read every name on your ticket and see that it is genuine before depositing your ballot. A hurried glance or a head line might indicate that it was all right, but take the precaution to see that no man is on there that you do not want to vote for. A difference of one or two independents or republicans substituted in a long ticket and sandwiched by good democrats would make no perceptible difference in the appearance of the ticket, but it would make a terrible difference in the returns and hurt you to think by a little carlessness you had voted for a man that you did not want to administer county affairs.
